CLARA SCHUMANN'S PIANO CONCERTO

Notes by TÖN trumpeter Diana Lopez

Matt Dine

A Gifted Girl

As a gifted girl, Clara Wieck was trained by her father Friedrich Wieck as a pianist, thinking to embark on a career as a performer. She made her first public appearance when she was 11 years old. When Clara was a teenager, she was more independent in spirit and found herself attracted to Robert Schumann, who in 1830 became involved in the Wieck's circle. They became engaged in secret in 1837. However, her father saw his daughter's marriage as an obstacle to the magnificent solo career in which he had invested so much. Robert and Clara had to get a court order to be able to marry without her father's consent. They finally married in 1840.

Clara and Robert

However, in order to focus on his own composition, sometimes Robert demanded limits on his wife's practice. Fortunately, she was strong and found herself gradually able to overcome the difficulties of life with her husband—to cope with his depressive moods and the birth of eight children, all before the age of 35. During those years she did her best to continue her own career as a composer and writer. After Robert's attempted suicide in 1854, he spent his final period in a private asylum. Clara, supported by friends, continued her concert career, as the only practical way of supporting her young family. Robert died in 1856. After his death, Clara started the promotion of his music on her own tours. In 1891 she gave her last concert in Frankfurt. In 1896, she suffered a stroke and died.

The Concerto

Clara Schumann's compositions were limited in number, but they show magnificent skills based on the musical education she received. In 1833, when she was 14, she wrote the first sketch of her Piano Concerto. Robert completed the orchestration at the end of the year. This became the third movement of the concerto. During the summer of 1834 she completed and orchestrated the first and second movements of the piece, and a year later was preparing it for publication. The concerto shows the maturity that Clara had already developed as a composer and soloist. Clara never played the concerto again in public after she married.

BRAHMS' A GERMAN REQUIEM

Notes by TÖN violist Lucas Goodman

Matt Dine

The Inspiration

Brahms began composing Ein Deutsches Requiem (A German Requiem) immediately following the death of his beloved mother, Christiane, in February of 1865. Another likely source of inspiration was Brahms' ongoing grief for his late friend, Robert Schumann, the man who initially caused him to become famous and who tragically died in 1856 while institutionalized. After an initial premiere of a smaller version in December of 1867, Brahms revised A German Requiem into the more expansive version that is popular today. It is the longest work in his oeuvre, and the largest in terms of number of musicians.

A Different Requiem

Brahms' Requiem is different from other traditional Requiem masses, such as those composed by Verdi, Mozart, Berlioz and Fauré, in a few notable ways. First, as the name implies, A German Requiem uses German instead of the traditional Latin text used by the composers mentioned above. Another major difference is that Brahms, who himself was a Protestant, took his own selections of text from the Lutheran Bible as the libretto for his Requiem, as opposed to the Catholic tradition typically associated with the Requiem Mass. Along with this difference comes a difference in the focus of the text itself, which omits references to Jesus Christ and other facets of the Christian faith—a fact which was pointed out to him by the conductor of the premiere. Brahms opted to compose what he would describe as a "Requiem of Mankind" in his response to the conductor. Brahms also chose to focus his work not on the dead but on the living, in an attempt to offer comfort to all listeners.

THE ORCHESTRA NOW

David DeNee

The Orchestra Now (TÖN) is a group of vibrant young musicians from across the globe who are making orchestral music relevant to 21st-century audiences by sharing their unique personal insights in a welcoming environment. Hand-picked from the world's leading conservatories—including the Yale School of Music, Shanghai Conservatory of Music, Royal Academy of Music, and the Eastman School of Music—the members of TÖN are enlightening curious minds by giving on-stage introductions and demonstrations, writing concert notes from the musicians' perspective, and having one-on-one discussions with patrons during intermissions.

Conductor, educator, and music historian Leon Botstein, whom The New York Times said “draws rich, expressive playing from the orchestra,” founded TÖN in 2015 as a graduate program at Bard College, where he is also president. TÖN offers both a three-year master's degree in Curatorial, Critical, and Performance Studies and a two-year advanced certificate in Orchestra Studies. The orchestra's home base is the Frank Gehry-designed Fisher Center at Bard, where it performs multiple concerts each season and takes part in the annual Bard Music Festival. It also performs regularly at the finest venues in New York, including Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, and others across NYC and beyond. HuffPost, who has called TÖN's performances “dramatic and intense,” praises these concerts as “an opportunity to see talented musicians early in their careers.”

The orchestra has performed with many distinguished guest conductors and soloists, including Leonard Slatkin, Neeme Järvi, Gil Shaham, Fabio Luisi, Vadim Repin, Hans Graf, Peter Serkin, Gerard Schwarz, Tan Dun, and JoAnn Falletta. Recordings featuring The Orchestra Now include two albums of piano concertos with Piers Lane on Hyperion Records, and a Sorel Classics concert recording of pianist Anna Shelest performing works by Anton Rubinstein with TÖN and conductor Neeme Järvi. Buried Alive with baritone Michael Nagy, released on Bridge Records in August 2020, includes the first recording in almost 60 years—and only the second recording ever—of Othmar Schoeck's song-cycle Lebendig begraben. Recent releases include an album of piano concertos with Orion Weiss on Bridge Records, and the soundtrack to the motion picture Forte. Recordings of TÖN's live concerts from the Fisher Center can be heard on Classical WMHT-FM and WWFM The Classical Network, and are featured regularly on Performance Today, broadcast nationwide.

SABRINA PARRY violin

Matt Dine

@sabrinakahlan

Sabrina will talk briefly about Clara Schumann's Piano Concerto on stage before the performance.

Hometown: Salt Lake City, UT

Alma maters: Eastman School of Music, 2013–17; Louisiana State University 2018–20

Awards/competitions: Winner, 2018 LSU Concerto Competition

Appearances: National Repertory Orchestra, 2017

What is your earliest memory of classical music? I have to mention both Fantasia and the album Hooked on Classics. These are undoubtedly both my introduction to classical music, and while some might think it's cheesy, I am so grateful for it! The visuals in Fantasia juxtaposed with some of the most iconic music always had me coming back for more, and my appreciation for the music grew at a very young age.

When did you realize you wanted to pursue music as a career? I think I always knew I wanted to perform in some capacity, so pursuing a career in music seemed like a no-brainer for most of my life. The real turning point, I think, was in high school when I attended my first summer festival and experienced coming together with people from different places and backgrounds, but all with a similar goal in mind.

Which composer or genre of music do you feel you connect with the most? Lately, I can't quite get enough of the neo-soul and jazz inspired genres. I love the complexities within the melodies of artists such as Hiatus Kaiyote, Esperanza Spalding, and Robert Glasper and find myself constantly inspired to make music when enjoying their art.

Tell us something about yourself that might surprise us: I can play the piano upside down.

Piece of advice for a young classical musician: Don't worry about anyone else's relationship with music, or the pressure to compete that may surround you. Discover your own quirks that make classical music important to you, which will help you create a narrative for audiences to understand and relate to.

BRENDAN DOOLEY flute

Matt Dine

Brendan will talk briefly about Brahms' A German Requiem on stage before the performance.

Hometown: Boylston, MA

Alma maters: Curtis Institute of Music, B.M.; University of Southern California, M.M.; Yale University, M.M.A.

Awards/Competitions: 1st Place, 2017 Redlands Bowl Concerto Competition

Appearances: National Repertory Orchestra, 2019; AIMS Graz Orchestra, 2016; New World Symphony; Music Academy of the West Orchestra; YMF Debut Orchestra, Los Angeles; Symphony in C, New Jersey

What is your earliest memory of classical music? Sitting on my dad's lap while he played the first of the Goldberg Variations.

When did you realize you wanted to pursue music as a career? When I was 14, I participated in the Maryland Summer Center for the Arts, a summer program at the local university. It was my first time in an orchestra and I had no idea where to sit, but by the end of those two weeks I knew I'd never get tired of orchestral playing!

What do you think orchestra concerts should look like in the 21st Century? The modern orchestra concert has to strike the right balance between engagement, classic repertoire, and discovery of new works. The history and tradition of classical music are unlike anything else and were a big part of what drew me to it from the beginning. But this tradition shouldn't be a barrier between the performer and the listener. Making sure to introduce new works and composers, in addition to prioritizing audience engagement and providing context around all the works on display, can help the audience to feel that they're all equal participants in the culture of classical music.

Piece of advice for a young classical musician: Take things slow! I understand feeling like you have to play a certain piece or get into a certain school immediately, but in my experience there are always things you feel you need to improve about your playing no matter where you are. Understanding that there's no particular rush to become the musician you want to be, or think you should be, has helped me come to terms with my own musical strengths and weaknesses.

About Bard College

FISHER CENTER AT BARD

The Fisher Center develops, produces, and presents performing arts across disciplines through new productions and context-rich programs that challenge and inspire. As a premier professional performing arts center and a hub for research and education, the Fisher Center supports artists, students, and audiences in the development and examination of artistic ideas, offering perspectives from the past and present as well as visions of the future. The Fisher Center demonstrates Bard's commitment to the performing arts as a cultural and educational necessity. Home is the Fisher Center for the Performing Arts, designed by Frank Gehry and located on the campus of Bard College in New York's Hudson Valley. The Fisher Center offers outstanding programs to many communities, including the students and faculty of Bard College, and audiences in the Hudson Valley, New York City, across the country, and around the world. Building on a 161-year history as a competitive and innovative undergraduate institution, Bard is committed to enriching culture, public life, and democratic discourse by training tomorrow's thought leaders.

ABOUT BARD COLLEGE

Founded in 1860, Bard College in Annandale-on-Hudson, New York, is an independent, residential, coeducational college offering a four-year BA program in the liberal arts and sciences and a five-year BA/BS degree in economics and finance. The Bard College Conservatory of Music offers a five-year program in which students pursue a dual degree—a BMus and a BA in a field other than music. Bard offers MMus degrees in conjunction with the Conservatory and The Orchestra Now, and at Longy School of Music of Bard College in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Bard and its affiliated institutions also grant the following degrees: AA at Bard Early Colleges, public schools with campuses in New York City, Baltimore, Cleveland, New Orleans, Washington, D.C., and Newark, New Jersey, and at three Bard Microcolleges; AA and BA at Bard College at Simon's Rock: The Early College, in Great Barrington, Massachusetts, and through the Bard Prison Initiative at six correctional institutions in New York State; MA in curatorial studies, MS and MA in economic theory and policy, MEd in environmental education, and MS in environmental policy and in climate science and policy at the Annandale campus; MFA at multiple campuses; MBA in sustainability in New York City; and MA, MPhil, and PhD in the decorative arts, design history, and material culture at the Bard Graduate Center in Manhattan. Internationally, Bard confers BA and MAT degrees at Al-Quds University in East Jerusalem and American University of Central Asia in Kyrgyzstan; and BA degrees at Bard College Berlin: A Liberal Arts University. Bard offers nearly 50 academic programs in four divisions. Total enrollment for Bard College and its affiliates is approximately 6,000 students. The undergraduate College has an enrollment of about 1,800 and a student-to-faculty ratio of 10:1. Bard's acquisition of the Montgomery Place estate brings the size of the campus to nearly 1,000 acres.
